dear SEG

Talk about timing

Audio lost when VCR records wild feed

Dear SEG:

I have a GI 450I IRD and a Toshiba M-65C video recorder. The program source is T4-24 and I am trying to record the wild feed of ER. I can record a program as I watch, but when I try to record a program with the use of the timer, I get a great picture but no audio. Any suggestions?

Bob Haynes
Via Internet

Dear Bob:

For most VCRs, there are two ways to record with the timer: by using a TV channel for input, or using direct video & audio. If you're using channel 3 or 4 from the GI450i as the recording source, you should be receiving audio. However, if you're using direct video & audio from the RCA jacks on the IRD, it's very common for one or both of the coaxes to fail. My guess is you're using that, and if I'm right, I suggest you replace the cables.

Dear SEG:

I have an EchoStar SRD 5000 remote control and it no longer does what I wish it to do without a lot of coaxing. A new battery will not fix the problem. Would a new remote be available and compatible with my EchoStar SRD 5000 receiver?

George Weis
Calgary, AB

Dear George:

New OEM remotes are not available, but the One for All 6 and One for All 5, and the Cinema One for All 6 and One for All 5 do all the functions except Store but your IRD has a store button on the front panel. These replacement remotes are available at most larger consumer electronics stores.

Satellite on the web

Use this handy primer to find out where you can find the latest satellite news in cyberspace

BY KEN M. NELSON

One word describes our modern lifestyle: fast! And that's exactly the pace in the ever-changing world of satellite TV.

To keep up with all the changes, you can spend up to the tune of $3,000 a year for subscriptions to a lot of insider magazines, or do your own surfing on the Internet and get a lot more current information.

But where do you start?

The whole point of the Internet is that once you find a starting point, it's like being at the middle of a spider web. There are pathways to knowledge branching off in every direction—and each search takes you to another Web site, another collection of data, opinions and, sometimes, total blarney. Use your good judgment because everyone has the right to put pages on the Internet, be they fools or wise men. Let's try the wise men first, OK? Where else to start off but with this: http://www.satguide.com, which is us, of course, and it gives you a great starting point. You'll find discussion forums, news sites and raw data.

At http://www.satguide.com, you'll find discussion forums, news sites and raw data.

Once you've gotten your feet wet on the Internet and you simply must find out where a transponder or even a whole satellite went, there is no better spot in the whole world to go than http://www.lyngsat.com.

OK, so you've got a few facts and many opinions. It's time to join in a few discussion groups. Excluding the satellite piracy discussion groups gets rid of hundreds of sites and leaves us with civilized newsgroup discussion groups like rec.video.satellite, rec.video.satellite.4dtv, rec.video.satellite.mis, and my favorite, rec.video.satellite.tvro. If your Internet provider does not give you newsgroups, there are excellent discussion groups to be found, and to jump into, at http://www.delphi.com/4dtv/, and other Delphi satellite discussion groups at http://www.kusat.com/cgi-bin/forums/-board.cgi.

http://www.lyngsat.com* is the site to visit when wondering what happened to a certain transponder or even a whole satellite.

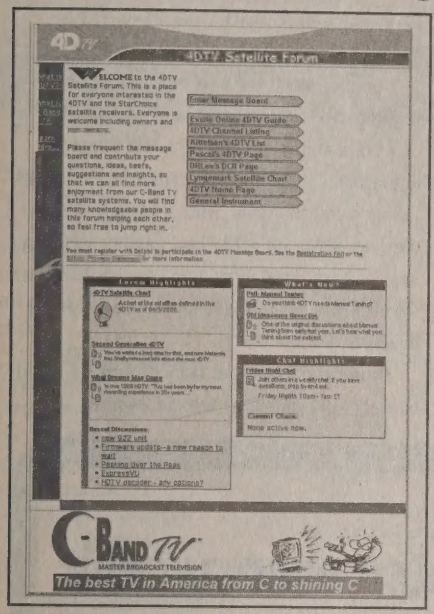
News about owners and launch providers of new satellites can be found at http://www.hughespace.com.

You may not find anything you agree with in discussion groups—or you may be

"To keep up with all the changes, you can do your own surfing on the Internet and get a lot more current information. But where do you start?..."



You can learn a lot by joining in to a newsgroup discussions group such as http://www.delphi/com/4dtv/.

too shy—but there is a lot of information out there provided by satellite systems owners, repair techs and even some of the same telephone support people you talk to when you've got a problem.

When is a new satellite going to be built and launched? Check with the owners and launch providers at http://www.arianespace.com/, http://www.hughespace.com/, http://www.loralskynet.com/, http://www.panamsat.com/, and http://www.telesat.ca. Sometimes they're very secretive and other times they tell all. You have to open the door and take a look for yourself.

Other sources include satellite fanatics who have been running their own satellite info pages for years. Among the best, you'll find http://www.colba.net/~pascalp, and http://www.nmia.com/~roberts/.

Focusing more on the business side of the satellite television industry but still full of timely data and explanations for the why's and who's who in this business, there is http://www.skyreport.com/. Part of the new world of satellite is digital TV, and where else to find out more but http://www.atsc.org/ and http://www.digitaltelevision.com/.

If you're interested in the business side of the satellite television industry, check out http://www.skyreport.com/.

Each of these sites will lead you to hundreds of others and somewhere you'll find the gems that you need to satisfy your curiosity, solve a problem or learn about what's going to happen next in this crazy but exciting world of satellite TV. When you find a particularly shiny gem, pass it along to SEG and share it with everyone.

A touchdown for C-band

Big-dish gridiron fans may once again be able to watch every regular-season NFL game this year. The league announced it plans to continue carrying its Sunday Ticket package on C-band, amid concern that pay-per-view service TVN may not be able to include the attraction in its roster this fall.

"Don't worry, we're going to be there," said Tola Murphy-Baran, NFL Enterprises' vice president of marketing and sales.

Since 1994, TVN has aired NFL Sunday Ticket on at least eight transponders on Galaxy 3R, located at 95 degrees west longitude. But analog space has been costly. TVN recently returned many of its transponders to satellite company PanAmSat and has only one full-time spot for its pay-per-view roster. The NFL is currently negotiating for transponders, hoping to return to its old G3 platform.

If successful, C-band customers will be able to watch up to 13 AFC and NFC match-ups every Sunday during the entire NFL 17-week season starting in September.

No panic over Anik

An August 8-14 launch window has opened up for Canadian bird Anik F1, reported satellite information service Lyngmark.

The Telesat spacecraft, reportedly the most powerful satellite ever built, will launch from Kourou, French Guiana on board an Ariane booster, heading for a slot at 107.3 degrees west longitude, bumping Anik E2 to share space with Anik E1 at 111.1 degrees.

The new satellite, currently being put together by Hughes Space and Communications in California, will boast an unprecedented 36 C-band transponders and 48 Ku-band transponders, with a 15-year design lifetime. Weighing 4,700 kg., roughly 1,700 kg. heavier than an E-series bird, the HS 702 class satellite will be 150 feet long once fully deployed.

Pending a successful launch, Anik F1 could be fully operational by late September.

It's Super Audio!

Most CD players are more or less the same, no matter what the guy at the appliance store says. But Sharp Electronics has upped the ante on high fidelity sound with its 50-watt per channel one-bit amp (SM-SX1), and companion Super Audio CD player (DX-SX1). This combination offers first-ever Direct Bitstream Coupling capability, enabling the digital signal from CDs to be conveyed directly to the speakers without sound degradation. The result is the closest possible reproduction of sound to the original source. Both units are thin and compact, so together they won't take up more space than the traditional CD player.

c-tips BY KEN NELSON

Water, water everywhere

Winter reception's great, but now, in the muggy afternoons and evenings, the picture's got lots of sparklies. How come? Every time you cook something in your microwave, you are demonstrating the reason. Microwaves, the very same thing that carries that TV signal from the satellite to your house, absorb microwave energy and turn it into heat. The warmer it is outside, the more water there is in the atmosphere. It sucks up your signal. Anything with water in it, be it green leaves or clothes drying on the line, for example, means less signal for you.

CBAC
C-BAND ALLIANCE OF CANADA

IS SOMEONE STEALING YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE?

As a big-dish TV owner, you have access to the wonderful world of satellite TV:
- Over 20 satellites • Hundreds of channels
- Superior quality reception.

C-Band is your choice in a fiercely competitive world of TV entertainment sources.

BUT ARE YOU AWARE YOU COULD LOSE YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE?

Following government approval of small dish satellite TV (Direct to Home or DTH), attempts have started to have C-Band satellite TV declared illegal.

The groups behind this move are cable TV and telephone companies—the suppliers of DTH systems. They describe C-Band TV systems as "grey market" and "illegal."

They are using this tactic even though neither the Government of Canada nor the Canadian Radio and Telecommunication Commission (CRTC) have ever declared C-Band systems illegal.

Perhaps they have recognized in the past that huge areas of Canada were for years under-serviced by traditional broadcasters and the cable TV companies.

If C-Band TV is declared illegal, tens of thousands of Canadians living in small towns and rural areas will face the prospect of losing their investment in big-dish satellite TV.

YOU CAN HELP PREVENT THIS!

Distributors and dealers of C-Band TV equipment and service have formed the C-Band Alliance of Canada (CBAC), a not-for-profit organization to represent people like yourself who will be affected.

CBAC will speak on your behalf to the Government of Canada, to the CRTC, to the media and to Canadians generally.

CBAC is dedicated to preserving an industry which has played a vital role over the past two decades in providing under-serviced areas of Canada with the same—or better—TV programming available in larger urban centres.

CBAC WILL FIGHT TO ENSURE THAT YOUR RIGHT OF CHOICE IS NOT TAKEN AWAY.

We invite to lend your support by joining the CBAC. There are no fees involved. Just complete the membership application form and send to the address shown—or hand it to your C-Band supplier.

THAT'S ALL YOU HAVE TO DO. STAND UP FOR YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE.

HOW TO ORDER PAY-PER-VIEW

What equipment do I need?

All Pay-Per-View orders require a VIDEOpal equipped VideoCipher II Plus descrambler, or a VC RS descrambler. To check if your VideoCipher descrambler is equipped with a VIDEOpal, your Unit Address Number will begin with 02D, 040, or 041.

Open an account:

Once you have a VideoCipher equipped with a VIDEOpal, you then need to open an account. This only needs to be done once and is accompanied with a one-time small fee. To open an account call the Satellite Video Center at 1-800-548-4336.

Things to remember:

On some brands of satellite receivers, please make sure to attach a telephone cable from your home's telephone jack outlet to the telephone outlet on the back of your VideoCipher II Plus or VC RS module. This cable must be in place in order for you to order Pay-Per-View events through your remote control.

To order a current program:

1. Check the listings for the date and time of the program you wish to watch. Tune your descrambler/IRD to that satellite and channel just before the program starts.
2. Press [VIEW] on your remote control or keypad to preview program selection, length and price.
3. Then press [ENTER] to order the program, and press [ENTER] again to confirm your order.*

2. Press [NEXT] and read the title, amount of time before program begins, and price.
3. Press [ENTER] to order the program, and press [ENTER] again to confirm your order.* If you decide not to view the program, simply change the channel before the program starts. Your order will not be recorded.

IS SOMEONE STEALING YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE?

As a big-dish TV owner, you have access to the wonderful world of satellite TV:
• Over 20 satellites • Hundreds of channels • Superior quality reception.

C-Band is your choice in a fiercely competitive world of TV entertainment sources.

BUT ARE YOU AWARE YOU COULD LOSE YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE?

Following government approval of small dish satellite TV (Direct to Home or DTH), attempts have started to have C-Band satellite TV declared illegal.

The groups behind this move are cable TV and telephone companies—the suppliers of DTH systems. They describe C-Band TV systems as "grey market" and "illegal."

They are using this tactic even though neither the Government of Canada nor the Canadian Radio and Telecommunication Commission (CRTC) have ever declared C-Band systems illegal.

Perhaps they have recognized in the past that huge areas of Canada were for years under-serviced by traditional broadcasters and the cable TV companies.

If C-Band TV is declared illegal, tens of thousands of Canadians living in small towns and rural areas will face the prospect of losing their investment in big-dish satellite TV.

YOU CAN HELP PREVENT THIS!

Distributors and dealers of C-Band TV equipment and service have formed the C-Band Alliance of Canada (CBAC), a not-for-profit organization to represent people like yourself who will be affected.

CBAC will speak on your behalf to the Government of Canada, to the CRTC, to the media and to Canadians generally.

CBAC is dedicated to preserving an industry which has played a vital role over the past two decades in providing under-serviced areas of Canada with the same—or better—TV programming available in larger urban centres.

CBAC WILL FIGHT TO ENSURE THAT YOUR RIGHT OF CHOICE IS NOT TAKEN AWAY.

When you wanted TV, C-Band was there for you over the last 18 years. Where were they?

We need to show the government and the CRTC that the C-Band community is united in opposing the strong-arm tactics of a small group of big businesses who want to monopolize the satellite TV market.

As one of the many Canadians who have invested in a C-Band TV system, will you help?

We invite to lend your support by joining the CBAC. There are no fees involved. Just complete the membership application form and send to the address shown—or hand it to your C-Band supplier.

THAT'S ALL YOU HAVE TO DO. STAND UP FOR YOUR RIGHT TO CHOOSE.
